Annual Report

of the Director

To the Trustees:

I have the honor to present a report of the operations of the Museum for the year ending December 31, 1962.

The single event of greatest public impact during 1962 was the showing of the Egyptian treasures from the tomb of King Tutan-khamun during the period from June 15 through July 15. The two-year tour of this exhibition in the United States is intended to draw public attention to the campaign to save the many archaeological treasures that will be lost upon completion of the Aswan Dam, unless funds are made available for intensive archaeological work. The extent of the interest generated in Chicago was evidenced by the 123,722 visitors to the exhibition.

On July 2, the 50 millionth visitor to the present building since its opening on May 2, 1921, was received in the person of John McFaul Witte of Westchester, Illinois. John, aged 12, was presented with a Life Membership in the Museum by the Director.

Expeditionary work in connection with current research projects of the scientific staff was particularly noteworthy. Our expeditions were active in Canada, Borneo, South and Central America, Bechuanaland, southern Asia, the Philippines and other islands in the Pacific, and in numerous areas within the United States. Study trips by the staff ranged far afield, including the completion of a round the world trip by Dr. Alan Solem, Curator of Lower Invertebrates. Field Associates and collectors extended our work in many other areas of the world.

Mention of the intensive program of field work and collecting leads inevitably to a broader consideration. Field work, which is essential to much of the research program of a natural history museum, produces collections of specimens—specimens that must be processed by technicians, studied by our staff or by collaborators elsewhere, published in the technical literature, and systematically filed, stored, and maintained for future use by other scientists working on different problems.

The burgeoning scientific activity in this country since World War II has placed on each segment of the scientific community an increasing burden as it attempts to maintain its proportionate role in the total effort. A major museum, similar to a major library, must by its very nature grow in collections, in space, in staff, if it is to fulfill its responsibilities to science and to the nation.

A concomitant to accelerated scientific research is the need for a continually better informed populace as an aid to understanding of new scientific knowledge and of the scientific process, and also for the pure intellectual stimulation derived from a broad scientific background. The science museum today has a responsibility for an increasing commitment to revision of exhibits as its principal contribution to public understanding. Temporary exhibits, in particular, provide an opportunity to transmit timely information about matters of current scientific interest. Such exhibits are, however, high in "per viewer" cost compared with exhibits planned to remain on view for years.

Growth is evident in other areas of our work. During the last ten years, the number of school children, other students, and teachers visiting the Museum annually has increased from 164,000 to 371,000. In 1962, 217,159 persons came in organized groups. We were able to serve only 52,508 of these through our Raymond Foundation activities. Ten years ago, we produced 20,000 pieces of photographic work annually in our Division of Photography; in 1962, 37,544 were completed. As our library grows in size and distinction, more advanced students visit it and more requests for interlibrary loans are received from universities, various industries, and other museums. As the number of graduate students in universities in this country and abroad grows, so does the number that comes to the Museum for instruction or independent study in our reference collections. We are gratified at the demand for these and other Museum services, but we recognize that such demands mean more librarians, photographers, preparators, guards, guides, maintenance personnel; yes, even more soap powder to eliminate small fingerprints from walls.

A museum such as Chicago Natural History Museum is thus in what is termed a "growth situation" in the investment world. Unfortunately, the corollary ends there, for, unlike a growth industry which nurtures itself through monetary profits, the Museum requires a continuing infusion of financial support from the community to which it pays its dividends of service.

In recognition of these very basic facts of museum existence, the staff began a study during 1962 to determine the resources needed if we are to meet the demands that will be made on the Museum during the next two decades. Although the study was not completed during 1962, two over-riding concerns were so evident that immediate action was necessary. The first need was a revision of staff salaries to bring us to a position closer to other major museums and to colleges and universities. Action by the Board of Trustees in December authorized some of the most critical revisions which will help to retain present and attract future staff. The other major problem is that of providing space to house our growing collections. Although the solution to this need was not in sight at the year's end, progress has been made on the physical planning which is precedent to a solution.

Further planning and assessment of need are indicated and will be undertaken. They will be most fruitful as we move in an orderly fashion to meet the challenges and opportunities of the years ahead.

TRUSTEES AND OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees, President Stanley Field requested that he be no longer continued in that office after fifty-three years of service. The Board of Trustees, therefore, elected Mr. Field Chairman of the Board and elected the former Director, Dr. Clifford C. Gregg, President. Hughston M. McBain was reelected First Vice-President, Joseph N. Field was elected Second Vice-President, and Bowen Blair, Third Vice-President. Solomon A. Smith was re-elected Treasurer and elected Assistant Secretary. E. Leland Webber, formerly Assistant Director, was elected Secretary of the Board and Director of the Museum.

GIFTS TO THE MUSEUM

The Museum received $3,062.50 from Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Donnelley. William S. Street donated $3,500 toward a zoological expedition to the Near East. The Searle Foundation gave an unrestricted gift of $2,000 and Jack C. Staehle likewise gave $1,593.75. Edward Alexander and Philip K. Wrigley each contributed $1,000 and the Children's Press also gave $1,000. Contributions were received from William G. Burt in the amount of $1,175, Joseph N. Field in the amount of $750, and William H. Mitchell in the amount of $500.

Stanley Field, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, gave an additional $31,234.75, and Mrs. Stanley Field, a Benefactor of the Museum, gave $15,000 to the Sara Carroll Field Fund. Miss Margaret B. Conover contributed $971.88 to the Conover Game-Bird Fund, and Dr. Maurice L. Richardson added $1,000 to the Maurice L. Richardson Paleontological Fund. Mrs. Cyril L. Ward gave $2,000 to the Frances F. Ward Endowment Fund. Dr. Clifford C. Gregg contributed $250 to the Commander Frank V. Gregg Memorial Fund. The Karl P. Schmidt Fund also received $50, the Museum Memorial Fund $207, and the Walther Buchen Memorial Fund $100. The Frederick Reynolds and Abby Kettelle Babcock Fund received $521.57 from the estate of the late Mrs. Abby K. Babcock (for use of Special Funds see page 94).

Additional gifts were received from Mr. and Mrs. Lee W. Alberts, Richard H. Alschuler, Herbert R. Anderson, Mrs. Maryl Andre, Edwin C. Austin, Mrs. Henry Warren Austin, Lyman Barr, George A. Bates, Arthur Joel Bell, Bowen Blair, William McCormick Blair, Mrs. Walther Buchen, Peder A. Christensen, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Donnelley, Walter Erman, David G. Feagans, Flexible Steel Lacing Company, James R. Getz, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Hahn, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Haywood, Lloyd Kraus, D. F. Krebs, Commander John F. Kurfess, Samuel A. Marx, Mrs. Katheryn L. McCord, H. Earle Muzzy, John Plain Foundation, Clarence B. Randall, Melvin N. and Mary F. Rothschild Fund, Judd Sackheim, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben M. Schutz, Edward D. Shumway, B. L. Smalley, Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith, and Roy E. Sturtevant.

In recognition of her generous gifts to the Museum, Mrs. A. W. Fuller was elected a Patron, Corporate Member and Contributor by the Board of Trustees. Other Contributors elected by the Board are: Edward Alexander, A. G. Atwater, Miss Caroline F. Bieber, Reverend Thomas Borgmeier, Mrs. Ann S. Donnelley, Elliott Donnelley, Mrs. Florine G. Oppenheimer, Seymour Oppenheimer, Harrison R. Steeves, Jr., Walter T. Stille, Mrs. Babs O. Weiss, and Philip K. Wrigley. Gifts of materials received during the year are listed at the end of this Report (see page 96).

THE N. W. HARRIS PUBLIC SCHOOL EXTENSION

This year of 1962 is the golden anniversary of Harris Extension, for it is the fiftieth since the department had its beginning in 1912. Its organization was the realization of a plan formulated earlier by the Museum under its new president, Stanley Field, for preparing special exhibits and carrying them into the classrooms of Chicago schools. The establishment of the department was made possible through the generosity of the late Norman Wait Harris, Chicago banker, who in 1911 had set up an endowment of $250,000 for the purpose. It was in recognition of Harris' generous contribution to the cause of education that the trustees of the Museum decreed that the new department should carry his name. Later contributions from the founder's son, the late Albert W. Harris, and other members of the Harris family added some $225,000 to the original endowment.

During this fiftieth year, the department has functioned in accordance with plans and procedures long established for carrying out the responsibilities for which it was organized. The list of schools and other public-service institutions receiving exhibits every two weeks on the scheduled lending program fluctuated only slightly: at the start of the year it numbered 497 and at the year's end 499. As in all normal years, each school and other institution received 34 different portable exhibits. The two departmental trucks that circulate the exhibits operated 163 days and traveled a combined total of 12,267 miles. Only 14 of the circulating exhibits were damaged while out on loan.

In the course of the year, but chiefly during the summer months when the exhibits were not in circulation, 182 of the department's 1,000-plus portable exhibits were reconditioned. Thirty-seven requests for special loans of individually selected exhibits or such study-kit material as fossils, rocks, herbarium sheets, and bird and mammal skins were satisfactorily met. The work of Preparator David A. Ross, begun late in 1961 on the outmoded coal-mine and oil-well exhibits, was interrupted in March by his induction into the Army. The coming year, however, promises real progress, for two new preparators have been appointed to the staff of Harris Extension.

JAMES NELSON AND ANNA LOUISE RAYMOND FOUNDATION FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL AND CHILDREN'S LECTURES

In 1962 Raymond Foundation continued its program to help groups and individuals to interpret and understand the Museum exhibits. Organized groups use the Museum in greater numbers each year. A total of 4,463 groups (including 217,159 persons) registered in the Museum in 1962. Most of these were school groups (for those who were helped by Raymond Foundation, see table on page 29).

Programs for school groups included tours, workshops (where students were able to handle selected materials), and study unit programs in which the students participated in seeking out some of the information by the use of question sheets. Motion pictures were used in many of these programs wherever the film could add to the understanding of the subject matter being discussed and the exhibits being studied.

Of the twenty-eight television programs presented to children's audiences, twelve were given on the Lee Phillips Friendship Show (WBBM-TV) by Mrs. Maryl Andre, Mr. Ernest Roscoe, and Miss Harriet Smith, and sixteen were presented on Totem Club (WTTW-TV). Five of the Totem Club programs were presented on the weekly program designed especially for children who are deaf or partially deaf. For these programs, labels, drawings and action augmented the verbal presentation to help the children follow the thread of the story. Participants in WTTW-TV programs were Mrs. Andre, Misses Joanne Evenson, Edith Fleming, Harriet Smith, and Miriam Wood, and Mr. Roscoe.

"Journey to Mexico," a series of Museum Stories, was written by Miss Fleming and presented to children who attended the spring Saturday morning motion picture programs.

Three new programs were presented in 1962:

1. Chicago's first Holiday Science Lectures were given December 26, 27, 28 and 29, as part of a national program sponsored by the American Association for the Advancement of Science (made possible by a grant from the National Science Foundation). The 1962 series in Chicago, on "Microbes in Health and Disease," was presented by Dr. Rene Dubos of the Rockefeller Institute in New York. Four different lectures were presented on four consecutive mornings to the same group of selected, high ability high school students (grades 10–12), and a limited number of teachers from the Chicago area. Each lecture was followed by a question and answer period. This series, which combined the stimulating and scholarly lectures of Dr. Dubos with the penetrating questions of the students, was one of the most dynamic programs the Museum has been privileged to present.

2. A series of six Saturday morning Workshops (3 hours each) was presented to a group of seventeen elementary school teachers from Evanston, Illinois. The request for this course came from the Steering Committee of the Professional Growth and Development Committee for School District No. 65 in Evanston. The purpose was to give the teachers a survey of the Museum, its exhibitions and activities, and to help them to use the Museum's facilities. For satisfactory participation in a minimum of sixteen hours in these six sessions, each teacher received one credit from the Evanston Board of Education. The response from the participants was most gratifying. Since most museums cannot possibly offer personal program services to the large number of visiting school groups with the limited staff available, it seems increasingly necessary that school teachers be well acquainted with the museums if optimum use is to be made of them. It is hoped that this type of cooperative teacher training can be continued and expanded.

3. During the Christmas vacation period, a Holiday Excursion in the Museum, called "Bible Plants and Animals," was offered. A direction sheet, prepared by Mrs. Maryl Andre and Miss Marie Svoboda, helped the visitors find the exhibits that showed plants and animals mentioned in the Bible, and gave more information about the exhibits.

During the period in the spring when many school groups visit the Museum, Mrs. Elizabeth Deis, a former member of the Raymond Foundation staff, assisted with tours; during both the spring and fall busy period, Mrs. Helen Christopher helped in meeting groups as they entered the Museum.

STAFF OF THE MUSEUM

E. Leland Webber, formerly Assistant Director, was elected Director to succeed Dr. Clifford C. Gregg.

The Museum suffered a great loss in the death, on April 17, of Dr. Sharat K. Roy, Chief Curator of the Department of Geology, a distinguished scientist of outstanding ability and achievement in the fields of invertebrate paleontology, meteoritics, and volcanology, Dr. Rainer Zangerl, formerly Curator of Fossil Reptiles, was appointed Chief Curator of the Department of Geology by the Board of Trustees at its May meeting. Dr. Joseph C. Moore, formerly Research Fellow of the American Museum of Natural History. joined the staff in January as Curator of Mammals. Philip Hershkovitz, formerly Curator of Mammals, was made Research Curator of Mammals. Other appointments were: James I. Goodrick, Assistant to the Director: Miss Lois M. Buenger, in charge of the Division of Memberships; Dr. Tibor Perenvi, Artist in the Department of Geology: Christopher C. Legge. Assistant Custodian of Collections in the Department of Anthropology; Mrs. Helen B. Christopher, Secretary to the President of the Museum, and William L. Daggett, Captain of the Guard. Ernest Roscoe, formerly Assistant in the Division of Lower Invertebrates, was appointed Guide Lecturer, Raymond Foundation.

William E. Lake, Chief Engineer, who had rendered outstanding service to the Museum during 42 years' association, retired in October. A realignment of responsibilities for building operations was made at that time, and James R. Shouba, Superintendent of Maintenance, was appointed Building Superintendent, in overall charge of building operations; Leonard Carrion, Assistant Chief Engineer, was appointed Chief Engineer, and Gustav Noren, Assistant Superintendent of Maintenance, was appointed Superintendent of Maintenance. Jacques L. Pulizzi was made Assistant Chief Engineer. Harold Grutzmacher, Assistant to Raymond Hallstein in the Division of Printing, was placed in charge upon Mr. Hallstein's resignation.

Resignations during the year were: Allen Liss, Custodian of Collections in the Department of Anthropology; Dr. John W. Thieret, Curator of Economic Botany; Mrs. Maidi Wiebe Leibhardt, Artist in the Department of Geology; Mrs. Gloria Pagano, in charge of the Division of Memberships; Miss Janet Wright, Assistant in the Division of Reptiles; Mrs. Joan Davis Levin, Assistant in the Division of Anatomy; Miss Marion A. Kratky, Secretary to the President; E. John Pfiffner, Staff Artist; Raymond Hallstein, in charge of Division of Printing; Miss Joanne Evenson, Raymond Foundation; Harry R. Smith, Captain of the Guard; and Raymond Gomes, Assistant Recorder. David Ross, Preparator in Harris Extension, was on leave for military service.

I record with regret the deaths of Dr. Wilfrid D. Hambly, formerly Curator of African Ethnology; Colin Campbell Sanborn, formerly Curator of Mammals; William H. Corning, formerly Superintendent of Maintenance; Miss Frances Foley, formerly Secretary of the Department of Geology; Ray Herring, formerly an employee in the Division of Printing; and John Besch, formerly a carpenter in the Division of Maintenance.

VOLUNTEER WORKERS

The Museum thanks its volunteer workers for their help during the year. Some of them, designated as Research Associates and Associates, are included in the List of Staff at the beginning of the Report. Other volunteers are: James Bacon, Gary Brown, Steven P. Collings, David Denison, Stanley J. Dvorak, Mrs. Onnolee Elting, Dr. MacDonald Fulton, Dr. Ramon Guevara, Sol Gurewitz, Miss Mary O'Brien, Peter N. Richardson, Mrs. E. K. Witcher, and Jay Wollin.

MEMBERSHIPS

At the end of 1962, the membership rolls of the Museum included 8,224 different persons. New Members in 1962 in all categories were 1,457. Losses by death, transfers to higher membership classes, moves from the Chicago area, and some cancellations reduced the net gain to 538 compared with 1961's net gain of 411. (Contributors elected by the Board of Trustees during the year are listed on page 106, and complete membership lists begin on page 105.) The increase in endowment funds from Life and Associate Members and the increase in operating funds from Annual and Sustaining Members show a growing appreciation by the community of the educational and cultural benefits of membership. The Museum is very grateful to all its Members for their interest and support.

It is with deep regret that I record the death of one whose service and loyalty for many years have meant so much to the development of the Museum: Mrs. Stanley Field, Benefactor, Patron, Corporate Member, and Life Member. It is with deep regret that I also record the death of Cornelius Crane, Benefactor.

MUSEUM ATTENDANCE

Attendance in 1962 totaled 1,470,424, a gain of 162,857 over 1961 attendance, which can be attributed primarily to the showing of the "Tutankhamun Treasures."

The July attendance of more than 294,000 was the largest monthly total since 1933–34, when unusually high visitation resulted because of proximity to the nearby Century of Progress Exposition.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS AND PROGRAMS

The major special exhibit of 1962 was "Tutankhamun Treasures," previously mentioned, which the Museum sponsored jointly with the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, from June 15 through July 15. The 123,722 visitors to the "Tutankhamun Treasures" rank the showing among the Museum's most popular presentations. During the month the Museum was privileged to present a series of lectures by Dr. Ahmed Fakhry, Professor of History of Ancient Egypt and the East, University of Cairo.

Of great importance, but of lesser popular interest, was the exhibit, "The Art of Benin," which combined the distinguished Fuller Benin collection with the Museum's collection and was on display from October 19 through January 6. The range and quality of the Fuller collection had long been known, but this exhibition was the first time the major portion had been publicly shown. The Museum is once again indebted to Mrs. A. W. F. Fuller for this further expression of her interest. The Museum was fortunate to have the assistance of Dr. Philip J. C. Dark, Professor of Anthropology at Southern Illinois University, who helped to organize the exhibition and was the author of the catalogue. Dr. Dark also presented two lectures during the exhibition.

A selection of 68 photographs of tribal life of East Africa and Zanzibar was displayed from November 1 to mid-January, 1963, through the courtesy of Dr. Robert F. Gray, Associate Professor of Anthropology at Tulane University, who selected the photographs shown from 4,000 taken during his two field trips to Africa.

"Indians of the Overland Trail," an exhibit of almost life-sized oil paintings by the Arizona artist, Paul Dyke, was shown during March in Stanley Field Hall.

Traditional annual exhibits included the Seventeenth International Exhibition of Nature Photography, sponsored by the Nature Camera Club of Chicago, in February; the Twelfth Annual Amateur Handcrafted Gem and Jewelry Competitive Exhibition, sponsored by the Chicago Lapidary Club; and "A Child's World of Nature," exhibited in co-operation with the Junior School of the Art Institute of Chicago. The exhibit of the work done in our halls by students of the school was forwarded to the Traveling Exhibition Service of the Smithsonian Institution for circulation under its auspices.

Members' Night, held April 27, attracted an enthusiastic gathering of 1,638 members and guests. The showing of the newly completed Hall of Primitive Art was the principal exhibition feature of the evening. In an adjacent hall, Mr. Phillip Lewis, Curator of

Primitive Art, and Dr. Louis O. Williams, Curator of Central American Botany, lectured on aspects of their respective professional work. Other new or re-installed exhibits were featured, and the work-rooms, laboratories, and study collections were open to our visitors.

The 117th and 118th free lecture series were presented through the provisions of the Edward E. Ayer Lecture Fund. A total of 15,346 persons attended the seventeen Saturday afternoon programs, several of which attracted capacity audiences.

EXPEDITIONS AND FIELD TRIPS IN 1962

The Museum conducted fifteen expeditions and field trips in 1962.

Getz, Museum Contributor); Mexico Archaeological Field Trip (Dr. Donald Collier, Curator of South American Archaeology and Ethnology); Southwest Archaeological Expedition (Dr. Paul S. Research and Expeditions

Dr. Donald Collier, Curator of South American Archaeology and Ethnology, continued work on materials from the Casma Valley, Peru. He also did research on Peruvian metallurgy that involved comparison of metal tools and ornaments in the Museum's collection, the Cummings collection, and the collections of the American Museum of Natural History and the Museum of the American Indian. When he attended the International Congress of Americanists in Mexico City in August he studied materials in the National Museum and the regional museum at Teotihuacan and visited a number of important new excavations in central Mexico. The most significant of these were the excavations of Richard S. MacNeish in the Tehuacan Valley, in caves and open sites that have yielded a sequence from 7000 B.C. until the Spanish conquest. Of particular interest in this valley is the pre-Columbian irrigation system with subterranean canals similar to ones in the Nazca region of Peru.

Phillip H. Lewis, Curator of Primitive Art, extended his study of New Ireland art to significant collections of New Ireland art and material culture in seven museums in the eastern United States. More than three hundred objects in these collections were studied and photographed. The resulting photographs, measurements, and observations, together with those made on objects in the large New Ireland collection of Chicago Natural History Museum, are the first step toward the creation of a body of research materials, which, together with a sampling of European and Australian museums, will provide an over-all view of most of the art of New Ireland extant in world museums. It is hoped that these photographs and observations can be taken into the field in New Ireland, where ethnological inquiry will help to sort out variants of the New Ireland art style and at the same time facilitate inquiry into the social functions of the art and the problems of change through time.

Dr. Paul S. Martin, Chief Curator, and Dr. John B. Rinaldo, Associate Curator of Archaeology, continued research on cultural adaptation, change, and ecology in eastern Arizona. Analysis of the 6,000 sherds from the Carter Ranch site, Arizona (excavated in 1961–62), by William A. Longacre, research assistant to Chief Curator Martin and predoctoral student, University of Chicago, yielded two major hypotheses: that two matrilineal kin-based groups occupied Carter Ranch Pueblo and that there were at least three traditions of pottery design.

Statistical analyses of frequencies of potsherds from the same site were undertaken with the aid of the Univac computer at the University of Chicago. Leslie A. Freeman and James Brown, research fellows at the University of Chicago, and Assistant Professor Lewis R. Binford calculated hundreds of regression analyses and chi-square tests on Univac.

The results of the palynological work indicate a long period of climatic change from a humid, cool, pluvial climate to a warm, arid one similar to that prevailing today in Arizona.

A grant from the National Science Foundation helped finance the above work and made it possible to continue, during the summer, archaeological and palynological studies in eastern Arizona. The Museum is grateful for this support given to the researches of Dr. Martin and his associates. Data thus obtained are being readied for analysis by means of an I.B.M. computer at the University of Chicago. Borings were taken from a dry lake bed to obtain samples for pollen analyses.

The Museum acknowledges with pleasure the contributions made to the funds of the expedition by James R. Carter, C. E. Gurley, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Hahn, Charles E. Keney, and Judd Sackheim. The Museum is also grateful to Dr. Robert L. Graves, Associate Director of the Operations Analysis Laboratory, and Allan B. Addelman, Chief Engineer of Univac, University of Chicago, for placing the facilities of their laboratory at the disposal of Dr. Martin, and to Bennet Fox, Research Assistant, Department of Statistics, University of Chicago, for his help. Thanks are also given to John Fritz, James Hill, Felipe Jocano, Tom Marks, John Saul, Roland Strassburger, and Gair Tourtellot, students, for their assistance.

Al. N. Oikonomides, a specialist in Greek archaeology studying at the University of Chicago, did research on the Museum's collection of Greek antiquities from Italy and Egypt. With the exception of a few pieces, the collection is unpublished and unknown in the scholarly world. His article in the Museum Bulletin (see page 84) discusses the most important piece in the collection, a bronze bust of the god Serapis.

George I. Quimby, Curator of North American Archaeology and Ethnology, continued his investigations of anthropological problems in the Upper Great Lakes region. Particular attention was focused on the Late Woodland and Historic periods from about A.D. 1400 to 1820 in an effort to bridge gaps between modern concepts of tribal cultures and the prehistoric cultural complexes of the region. During the year field trips were made to sites in Michigan, Ontario, and Wisconsin. Study trips were made to various museums and to homes of individuals possessing specific areal collections. As a part of this program, Curator Quimby, assisted by James R. Getz, made an archaeological survey of the north shore of Lake Michigan and part of the north shore of Lake Huron from Fayette to Drummond Island, Michigan. Surface collections were made from newly discovered sites as well as from those found on previous field trips. A technique for working flint, not previously known for the Upper Great Lakes area, was discovered at some of the sites.

Associate Curator Rinaldo devoted the first part of the year to the preparation, with Chief Curator Martin, of a report on the Carter Ranch site, a prehistoric Pueblo Indian village in eastern Arizona. From June to September he co-directed excavations for the Southwest Archaeological Expedition, and after his return resumed the analysis of data initiated in the field.

Accessions—Anthropology

Outstanding among acquisitions were some fourteen hundred rare and valuable folk- and minor-art pieces, most of them Chinese, acquired by the Museum from Miss Caroline Frances Bieber, of Santa Fe, New Mexico. The larger part of the collection came by gift. It contained two distinct groups: (1) a general collection consisting of a wide variety of objects, including fine costumes and textiles, costume accessories, jewelry, shadow puppets, paper cut-outs and stencils, paintings, drawings and block prints, tools and toys, and a wide range of minor art objects of many types and materials; and (2) an unmatched collection of 237 belt toggles, beautifully fashioned small objects traditionally worn by Chinese gentlemen as decorative counterweights for personal accessories suspended from their belts.

This excellent collection of materials in large part is representative of middle- and upper-class life in the Peking area of North China during the period of the Ch'ing Dynasty (A.D. 1644–1911). The collection serves unusually well to exemplify the amazing variety of expression—in terms especially of techniques of manufacture and decorative motifs—that is manifested in Chinese folk and minor arts. Already well known, the Museum's collections of such materials has been very richly enhanced by the addition of Miss Bieber's materials and now are among the very best and most representative in the world. The Chinese collections were further enlarged by a fine group of cut-velvet textiles that were presented to the Museum by Miss Edna H. Bahr, a donor on many occasions.

The Tibetan collections were notably supplemented by purchase of a group of about 150 ethnological specimens obtained through the courtesy and co-operation of Desmond Doig, of Calcutta, India. This collection, which is particularly representative of western and southern Tibet and which also includes materials from Nepal, Sikkim, and Bhutan, nicely balances the Museum's excellent existing Tibetan collection, which until now was composed mainly of materials from the eastern, Chinese-influenced portion of Tibet.

A notable gift received from A. G. Atwater is a magnificant gold breastplate from Colombia, in Quimbaya style, A.D. 500-900.

Care of the Collections-Anthropology

The new storage area for Asian Ethnology neared completion, while members of the department carried out the long and laborious task of transferring the many thousands of specimens from the old storages to the new. In charge of the moving were Allen Liss, Custodian of Collections until his resignation, and Christopher C. Legge, Assistant Custodian. Miss Anna C. Rose, Antioch College student, who contributed signally in this transfer over a six-month period assumed a great measure of responsibility for carrying the work forward and was unusually willing and conscientious. Sol Gurewitz, a very faithful and cheerful volunteer, also has helped very greatly in the transfer, as well as in the performance of many other duties. Such loyalty and willingness to do all that is asked of him is most appreciated in a volunteer worker.

Miss Mary E. Hogquist, assistant, whose marked ability has made her assistance invaluable, assumed full responsibility for processing the thousands of newly acquired specimens of Asian ethnological materials. In this long and tedious project she has been given excellent and continuing aid by Patrick M. Brantlinger, Miss Kaaren Stoner, and Miss Rose, Antioch College students, without whose help the work could not possibly have been done.

Many new photographs have been taken of both older specimens and newly acquired materials, and prints have been made and placed in the department's albums for use by scholars and the public. This work was shared by the Division of Photography and Miss Hogquist.

Dr. Hoshien Tchen, Consultant, East Asian Collection, continued his highly specialized work of cataloguing the Museum's extensive collection of Chinese and Tibetan ink-rubbings. Dr. Tchen completed the cataloguing of a large and valuable collection of more than 300 Chinese and Tibetan ink-rubbings, the gift of the late Dr. David C. Graham. These rubbings are from Ssŭ-ch'üan province in west China and were taken from tomb reliefs of the Han period (207 B.C.-A.D. 220). Outstanding among them is a series that gives an unusually fine representation of the typical regional culture of this area in west China. Dr. Tchen also worked toward the completion of the cataloguing of two other groups of The first consisted of rubbings of the famous Buddhist sculpture and inscriptions found in Lung-men, at Lo-yang in Honan Province. These date from the Northern Wei dynasty (A.D. 424–534) to the T'ang dynasty (A.D. 618-907). The second group consisted of rubbings of the tomb inscriptions of the T'ang dynasty. These rubbings represent the most famous tombstones of the T'ang period and include examples of writing by such celebrated calligraphers and scholars as Ch'u Sui-liang, Yen Chên-ch'ing, Liu Kung-chuan, and Li Yang-ping.

Exhibits—Anthropology

In the Division of Asiatic Archaeology and Ethnology the year saw the continuing re-installation of Hall 32, devoted to illustrating Chinese life as it has been during recent centuries. Of basic importance in the execution of this long program have been the highly imaginative ideas and techniques of Theodore Halkin, Artist, and the excellent craftsmanship of Walter C. Reese, Preparator. Renovation of the Chinese art and archaeological exhibits also continued in George T. and Frances Gaylord Smith Hall (Hall 24).

Curator Lewis conceived and supervised the exhibit, "The Human Image in Primitive Art," which completed the Hall of Primitive Art (Hall 2, Edward E. and Emma B. Ayer Hall). Together with the previously presented "Primitive Artists Look at Civilization," and several definitive and explanatory cases including the complex exhibits, "Primitive Art in Time and Space," designed and executed by Artist Gustaf Dalstrom, the total offerings in this hall now sample art in the world-wide collections of the Museum, with the subject-matter—man—depicted in the various art styles. This marks the completion of the introductory phase of a program of exhibition in primitive art. Preparator Reese installed many of the specimens, and Miss Rose, Antioch College student, helped in checking specimens.

New exhibits on "Modern and Traditional Hopi Crafts" and "Music and Musical Instruments of the Pueblo Indians" were prepared for Hall 7 (Ancient and Modern Indians of the Southwestern United States) by Artist Dalstrom. He also completed sketches and working drawings for a revision, based on the latest archaeological findings, of the Swiss Lake Dweller diorama in Hall C (Stone Age of the Old World). Alfred Lee Rowell, Dioramist, continued work on a diorama for Hall F (Peoples of Micronesia and Polynesia). Artist-Preparator Susan Schanck designed "The Art of Benin" exhibit and the showing of the Gray photographs of East African tribal life (see page 33), and she assisted in many other aspects of the exhibition program.

Research and Expeditions

Dr. Margery C. Carlson, Associate in Botany, collected several hundred plant specimens for the Museum herbarium during a vacation trip to Hawaii in February and March. She completed identification of the specimens and continued study of plants collected by her in Mexico and Costa Rica in previous years.

Dr. Earl E. Sherff, Research Associate in Systematic Botany, identified collections of Hawaiian plants referred to him by others,

Dr. Rogers McVaugh, Curator of Vascular Plants at the University of Michigan and Research Associate on the staff of the Museum, completed his manuscript on the Myrtaceae for the Flora of Guatemala. He also submitted for prior publication a shorter paper describing new species and changes in names of Guatemalan Myrtaceae. He was in residence at the Museum from mid-July to mid-August to continue work on an annotated catalog of the Sessé and Mociño collection of Mexican plants made in the 1780's. The collection has been on deposit in the Museum from the Instituto "Antonio José Cavanilles," Madrid, Spain, since 1936. He was able to identify most of the undetermined specimens and arrange to have the remainder sent to other specialists. He made a revised annotated list of the collection that now must be further checked against literature, records, and specimens in European herbaria.

Dr. Sydney F. Glassman, of the University of Illinois (Navy Pier, Chicago), completed the manuscript for the second and concluding part (West Indian Species), of A Revision of the Genus Copernicia. This study of the wax palm was initiated by the late Dr. B. E. Dahlgren, Curator Emeritus, and supported over the years with funds by S. E. Johnson and Son, Inc. Although J. Francis Macbride, Curator of Peruvian Botany, was severely injured in an automobile accident early in the year and disabled for several months, he made progress during the year in his work on the Com-positae, a family of plants, for the Flora of Peru.

Dr. C. Earle Smith, Jr., former Associate Curator of Vascular Plants, submitted manuscript for two reports on his collections made in 1961 in the Tehuacan area of Mexico when he was Consulting Botanist for the Archaeological-Botanical Tehuacan Project that was conducted by Dr. Richard S. MacNeish of the Royal Ontario Museum and sponsored by the R. S. Peabody Foundation. One report is on the flora and the other is a history of agriculture in the Tehuacan valley with reference to the origin and spread of certain cultivated plants.

Dr. John W. Thieret, former Curator of Economic Botany, accompanied by Gerald Groves of Salt Lake City and James Delahoussaye, a student at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, spent the month of August making further observations, collections, and photographs to conclude a survey of the vegetation in the Fort Providence–Yellowknife Highway area at the western end of Great Slave Lake. The project was aided by a National Science Foundation grant.

Dr. Patricio Ponce de León, Assistant Curator of the Cryptogamic Herbarium, did local collecting and continued his studies of the genus Polyporus as part of a projected revision of New World Polyporaceae. He also made arrangements to receive samples taken monthly from the filters of Chicago's Southside Filtration Plant in order to study the composition and seasonal variation in the phytoplankton of Lake Michigan.

Dr. Louis O. Williams, Curator of Central American Botany, completed his treatment of the Melastomaceae for the Flora of Guatemala after a study trip in May during which he spent about one week each at the Gray Herbarium (Cambridge), the New York Botanical Garden Herbarium, and the United States National Herbarium to check Guatemalan Melastomes in those collections. Dr. Williams submitted for publication a preliminary paper containing descriptions of new species, nomenclatural changes, and comments pertinent to the family. He completed manuscript for the plant families Onagraceae and Halorrhagaceae in Guatemala before his departure for further collecting in that country. He arrived at Huehuetenango late in November, and was joined by Antonio Molina, botanist at the Escuela Agricola Panamericana (Tegucigalpa, Honduras). Field work began immediately and specimens were collected from a number of different localities from which adequate material had not been obtained previously.

Miss Edith M. Vincent, Research Librarian, handled routine operations of the departmental library and in addition remained a rich source of information concerning botanical literature for all who used the library.

Accessions-Botany

Of 87 accessions (13,219 specimens) recorded for the year, 49 lots amounting to 5,177 specimens were received by gift, 32 lots amounting to 6,771 specimens came on exchange, and 4 lots including 699 specimens were purchased. Once again Holly Reed Bennett, Contributor Member of the Museum, was the donor of the largest number of specimens received in 1962 from one source. His avocational but intensive and thorough collecting in specific areas of western United States produced 3,945 carefully prepared and named specimens of great value to the herbarium. Of special merit also were 1,129 Honduran plants received on exchange from the Escuela Agricola Panamericana because they add measurably to the representation of Central American plants of which the Museum already has one of the world's richest collections. Other accessions of note included plants from Sarawak and from Bolivia; mosses and liverworts from Great Bear Lake, Northwest Territories, Canada. collected by Dr. William C. Steere (received in an exchange from the University of Michigan); Peruvian plants collected in 1951 and 1956-57 by the Fifth and Sixth Andean Expeditions of the University of California, in which the Museum participated; plants peculiar to beaches of Mexico and the West Indies, from Dr. Jonathan Sauer of the University of Wisconsin; pollen slides based on specimens in the Museum herbarium; and microscope slides of sectioned plant-parts prepared by Professor P. Maheshwari of the University of Delhi, India.

Care of the Collections-Botany

Dr. Glassman volunteered his services to merge specimens of palms filed in the main herbarium with those specially prepared by the late Dr. Dahlgren and kept in Room 10. In this move some relief of crowded conditions in one section of the main herbarium of vascular plants was obtained, along with the advantage of having all the palm material together. Several thousand unmounted unidentified specimens in storage were organized as to country, collector, and collector's numbers by Assistant Dorothy Gibson with student help. As identifications become available, the referent specimens can now be found readily. Likewise, specimens identified only as to family and stored at the end of family groups in the herbarium were similarly arranged for most families.

Assistant Curator Ponce de León, assisted by Antioch College student Jennifer J. Puleston and DePauw University student Tod Steussy, completed the transfer of all specimens of mosses and hepatics to color-coded folders that are used to indicate geographic location. Transfer operations necessitated numerous identifications and revisions, and included the preparation of new labels and of annotation labels as well as new folders and the remounting of specimens. The transfer of the Polypore family of fungi to color-coded folders also was begun with the help of Donald Saunders and Antioch College student Katherine T. Josephson. Cryptogamic specimens totaling 800 were mounted and added to the Herbarium.

Mrs. Lenore Warner worked on an alphabetical index of typephotographs in families and genera to supplement and cross-reference the numerical indices completed in 1960 and the generic indices completed last year. In continuation of exchange, 7.334 typephotographs were sent to other institutions, 260 were sold, and 730 new negatives were added to the files. A total of 26,732 specimens was mounted and added to the Herbarium of Vascular Plants. Plants were mounted by Mrs. Karoline Benyovszky, and for a part of the year by Peter Feldman and Matthew Richards. Jennie Pletinckx did the filing and in the process added Dalla Torre and Harms index numbers to genus folders. Robert Yule performed a number of routine tasks for the herbarium, the departmental file of photographs, and other divisions of the Museum. In addition to 89 visitors recorded as using herbarium specimens for study in the Museum, 10,198 specimens were shipped for study at other institutions in the United States and eleven foreign countries.

Exhibits—Botany

Construction and placement of remodeled exhibition cases in their new arrangement were completed by the Division of Maintenance in the Hall of Useful Plants (Hall 28). New exhibits of stem fibers (flax, ramie, Indian hemp, jute), of leaf fibers (bow string hemp and New Zealand hemp), of surface fibers (cotton, kapok), and of miscellaneous coarse fibers (brush, broom, bark cloth) were completed except for labeling and small details in some instances. Four case units on spices and two showing gums and pectins were installed. Miniature dioramas of coffee and tea planatations, a cassava field and mill, and a model of a tea bush in flower and fruit were removed from Hall 25 (Food Plants and Palms), where they occupied individual cases, and were placed in Hall 28 in architecturally integral units of the hall. Layout, design, and execution of exhibits were largely the work of Artist-Preparator Samuel H. Grove, Jr., and Artist Robert Anderson. Technician Frank Boryca made plant models for inclusion in various exhibits and Preparator Walter Huebner carved in wood a number of models of fiber and seed anatomy, made display devices, and remodeled interiors of exhibition cases for installation of materials. Almon Cooley trimmed leaves of plant models and completed other routine assignments.

Research and Expeditions

Dr. Eugene S. Richardson, Jr., Curator of Fossil Invertebrates, made eight one-day excursions to the Peabody Coal Company's strip mines in Will and Kankakee counties, Illinois, to collect fossils from a recently discovered fauna contemporary with the well-known Mazon Creek plants and animals. He is studying one of the common and relatively large fossils from this fauna, an invertebrate of unknown affinities.

During the summer Curator Richardson and Chief Preparator Orville L. Gilpin returned to Cottonwood Canyon, in the northern Bighorn Mountains of Wyoming, to collect Early Devonian fossils. Assisted by Peter N. Richardson and David Denison, both making their second trip, and by Steven P. Collings of Rockville, Indiana. long associated with Curator Richardson and Chief Curator Rainer Zangerl in the Museum's Mecca Project (see Annual Report, 1961, page 49), they enlarged the quarry from which Preparator Gilpin, Curator Richardson, and Dr. Robert H. Denison, Curator of Fossil Fishes, had previously made significant collections of primitive armored fishes. Although they collected several fine eurypterids ("sea scorpions"), the fossil fishes were again the more important finds. Besides several articulated specimens of the armored fishes Protaspis and Cardipeltis, the party recovered an articulated lungfish and two lungfish skulls. The eurypterids of this fauna are at present being studied by Erik N. Kjellesvig-Waering, Research Associate. Two days were spent in Custer County, South Dakota, collecting articulated partial skeletons of Cretaceous mosasaurs, pterodactyls, fishes, and birds under the experienced guidance of Dr. John Clark, of Spearfish, South Dakota.

Curator Denison has spent much of the year in completing his revision of the Cyathaspididae, a family of Silurian and Devonian jawless vertebrates. Included in this is a description of new Canadian material from British Columbia and Northwest Territories collected by the California Standard Company. He has also continued his work on the Early Devonian fishes of Wyoming, concentrating especially on the lungfishes and Cardipeltis. His only field work was a trip to a fish-bearing quarry in the Mississippian rocks of eastern Michigan.

Dr. Edward J. Olsen, Curator of Mineralogy, completed a computation of the pressures of oxygen and water that control the presence of minerals found in serpentinite rocks. The results were especially fruitful since they showed that the metallic iron-nickel alloys found in these rocks are entirely compatible with an origin as secondary minerals. Dr. Olsen continued work on the calculated effect of nickel in similar alloys in meteorites and particularly its effect on the stability of the mineral, cohenite, over which there has been controversy recently. In addition, he has begun initial computations on the stabilities of other meteorite minerals and the solubility of silicon in meteoritic iron. During the year he completed a qualitative study of the trace elements in copper artifacts of North American Indians in co-operation with George I. Quimby, Curator of North American Archaeology and Ethnology. During the summer Curator Olsen made a trip to southern Illinois. where he collected samples of peridotite rock intruding coal beds. These rocks may possibly contain small amounts of natural ironcarbon alloy minerals.

Dr. Bertram G. Woodland, Associate Curator of Petrology, completed studies on a suite of lamprophyric dikes from northeast Vermont and on the thermal metamorphism of pelitic rocks of the Burke area, Vermont. He was also engaged in a detailed study of cone-in-cone structure, utilizing the Museum's collection as well as material he collected in Indiana and Wyoming and other specimens from Nova Scotia, South Dakota, Wyoming, Alabama. Montana, and Iowa donated by other geologists. Dr. Woodland also initiated a petrographic study of the sedimentary rocks of the Beartooth formation, Cottonwood Canyon, Wyoming, in collaboration with Curator Richardson, and a study of the micro-structures in the metamorphic rocks of the Royalton area, Vermont. Dr. Woodland spent three weeks in the field studying structures in the Pre-Cambrian metamorphic rocks of the southern Black Hills and collecting from many pegmatite quarries in the vicinity and from the the Tertiary extrusive and intrusive rocks of the northern Black Hills. He also made a brief visit to the Museum's quarry in Cottonwood Canyon, Wyoming, and collected in the Cretaceous beds of the Bighorn Basin near Greybull, Wyoming. He identified the types of material in artifacts collected during the Museum's archaeological expedition to the Southwest. Douglas F. Gilbert, James Martin, and David Kuder, Antioch College students, helped in the laboratory and cataloguing work of the petrology section.

William D. Turnbull, Assistant Curator of Fossil Mammals, and Dr. Charles A. Reed, of Yale University, have completed their joint study of an aberrant group of small middle Tertiary burrowing insectivores related to the moles. The work is based upon hundreds of tiny scraps of bone, the only evidence of the existence of this extinct line of animals. The report is the result of intermittent studies over the past six or more years. Turnbull's work on the fossil fauna of the Washakie formation continues and his study of the adaptive types of mammalian masticatory apparatus is nearly complete. During June and July he was in the field in the Northern High Plains and Mountain States on a reconnaissance trip to locate possible Mesozoic and earliest Tertiary mammal localities. Perhaps the most significant find resulted from following a lead called to his attention by Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Vinje of Hazen, North Dakota—the acquisition of a Paleocene faunule from a channel sandstone within the Tongue River formation that outcrops along the Garrison Reservoir. Other notable discoveries were made in the Cretaceous Hell Creek beds and the Oligocene Pipestone Springs beds in Montana.

Harry Changnon, Curator of Exhibits, began work in August on the collection of field data and preparation of a manuscript for a field guide on the geology of the Chicago Region.

Chief Curator Zangerl did preliminary work on peculiar primitive fishes of Pennsylvanian age that occur in the Mecca and Logan Quarry shale of west-central Indiana and spent some time on manuscripts that describe repetitive shield variation in modern turtles and osteogenetic differentiation of the shell in the New Guinea turtle Carettochelys insculpta.

Accessions-Geology

In addition to material collected during the field work mentioned above, the collections were enlarged by gift and purchase. Additional specimens from the Niobrara Chalk of Kansas were purchased from Marion C. Bonner (through the Maurice L. Richardson Paleontological Fund). They include the fishes Saurodon and Cimolichthys, two mosasaurs, and a wing of the flying reptile, Pteranodon.

During the year a magnificent diamond-platinum clip was received as a gift from Seymour Oppenheimer, Mrs. Florine G. Oppenheimer, and Mrs. Babs O. Weiss. In addition, a large specimen (1,575 grams) of rough gem kunzite from Brazil was obtained by purchase. A 47-carat faceted specimen of kunzite from Brazil and a faceted 14-carat crystal of the rare mineral sinhalite from Ceylon were received by exchange. All of these gemstones have been added to the exhibition cases in H. N. Higinbotham Hall (Hall 31, Gems and Jewels). An exchange was completed for eight very large specimens of petrified wood that are beautifully cut and polished and show considerable detail in vascular structure. An exchange was also completed for a specimen of the New Zealand meteorite, Mokoia. The Department of Geophysical Sciences of the University of Chicago presented a fully catalogued collection of economic ores from various North American localities, a collection that was originally amassed by Professor Edson S. Bastin, internationally famous economic geologist.

Care of the Collections-Geology

Preparation of study specimens has kept the Paleontology Laboratories busy this past year. The Devonian fishes from Cottonwood Canyon, Wyoming, the reptiles and birds from the Pierre Shale of South Dakota, and the mosasaurs and fishes from the Kansas chalk were worked out of the matrix. Plaster reproduction of fossil specimens is rapidly becoming one of our most time-consuming chores. During the year Chief Preparator Gilpin and Preparator Ronald J. Lambert have prepared and sent out a total of 335 casts to four colleges in the United States and to four institutions in foreign countries.

Henry Horback, Assistant, continued work on the preparation of a catalog of the Museum's collection of meteorites, begun by the late Dr. Sharat K. Roy, Chief Curator of Geology. An inventory of all the specimens of stone and iron-stone meteorites and a portion of the iron meteorites has been completed. This involves the checking and rechecking of all pertinent data as to date and locality of fall or find, the classification, description, and weight of each specimen, the number of individuals representing the meteorite, and bibliographic references. All of the iron-stone and iron meteorites in the collection were checked for oxidation and, where necessary, specimens were re-etched and treated with a rust-resisting agent. Sixty-five specimens of tektites from Luzon, Philippine Islands, and twenty from Thailand in addition to two specimens of a stone meteorite from New Zealand were catalogued and numbered, and storage labels and file cards were prepared. During the year a revised classification system was completed for the silicate minerals.

In addition to cataloguing more than 400 fossil vertebrates, Assistant David Techter began the task of reorganizing the fossil plant collection. This involved making standard labels for several hundred specimens and rearranging specimens more compactly by locality. Chih-wei Pan, of the Museum staff, continued the identification and cataloguing of Cenozoic invertebrates from the extensive Nelson Collection, and Miss Carole Stentz, a summer assistant from Oberlin College, identified and catalogued several hundred Cretaceous specimens from the same collection. Mrs. Maria Weiss, holder of the Museum's Thomas J. Dee Fellowship, was occupied for several months in rearranging portions of the collections of fossil invertebrates.

Exhibits-Geology

During the year fourteen exhibits were dismantled and reinstalled in the Hall of Economic Geology (Hall 36). New backgrounds were added and labels brought up to date. Special emphasis was given to minerals and rocks that have increased in economic importance. Where necessary, new specimens were added. tion of the hall devoted to useful rocks and non-metallic minerals was completed and work begun on the reinstallation of exhibits of metallic ores. The exhibit of fluorescent minerals was reinstalled with new labels and an improved ultra-violet lamp that greatly increases the intensity of fluorescence of the specimens. Because of the public interest in the earth's moon satellite engendered by the government space-program, a 20-inch detailed identification chart was added to the moon model in Clarence Buckingham Hall (Hall 35, Moon, Meteorites, and Minerals), thus enhancing its usefulness as a study model for Museum visitors. The exhibition program was carried on by Harry E. Changnon, Curator of Exhibits, Associate Curator Woodland, Assistant Horback, and Preparator Henry U. Taylor. Illustrations were made by Mrs. Maidi Wiebe Leibhardt and Dr. Tibor Perenyi, Departmental Artists.

CAMP SITE OF WILLIAM S. AND JANICE K. STREET IRANIAN EXPEDITION

Department of Zoology

Research and Expeditions

Field work was done in North America, South America, Pacific Islands, New Zealand and Australia, the Philippines, Southern Asia, and Africa by members of our staff. In South America one non-staff member completed an expedition that was begun in 1960.

North America. Associate Curator Henry S. Dybas, with Dr. Monte Lloyd of the University of California (Los Angeles), spent five weeks in early summer in Virginia studying an emergence of seventeen-year periodical cicadas and several days surveying areas in southern Illinois and Indiana where they expect to make field studies of thirteen-year periodical cicadas that are scheduled to emerge in 1963.

South America (Surinam). In February Harry A. Beatty, of New York, completed his project, begun in 1960, of collecting birds and mammals. Research Curator Philip Hershkovitz and Dr. Jack Fooden, Post-Doctoral Fellow, completed their mammal studies that were begun in 1961.

PACIFIC ISLANDS, NEW ZEALAND, AND AUSTRALIA. Curator Alan Solem and Mrs. Solem returned in October from their year's work in the Pacific area. They collected land mollusks on Tahiti, Fiji, New Caledonia, and Malaya, and made smaller collections on weekend trips in New Zealand and Australia. Museum Contributributor Rush Watkins spent several months in Tahiti collecting coral-reef fishes.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS. Associate Dioscoro S. Rabor was supported in part for field work (birds) in Palawan, done during his vacation period from Silliman University, where he teaches.

BORNEO. Curator Robert F. Inger and Dr. Bernard Greenberg of Roosevelt University made a short trip to Borneo to initiate a study on cycles and population densities of frogs. A graduate student, F. Wayne King, was left with a staff of Dyaks to complete the study.

Southern Asia. In Nepal, Field Associate Robert L. Fleming continued his field studies of birds as opportunity offered in the vicinity of Kathmandu. Curator Solem (see above) returned from his Pacific area work by way of Malaya, where he was able to make collections of land mollusks. Mr. and Mrs. William S. Street of Seattle, Contributors to the Museum, accompanied by Douglas M. Lay, graduate student from Louisiana State University, as assistant, arrived in Iran in July. Their expedition, organized to study and collect mammals, will continue into 1963. Mammals of 90 species were collected by mid-December.

AFRICA. In Egypt and the Sudan, Research Associate Harry Hoogstraal continued collecting specimens in connection with his studies of birds and mammals and arthropod-borne diseases. Associate Curator Melvin A. Traylor, Jr., completed his bird studies in Southern Africa, begun in 1961, by collecting in the Ngamiland area of Bechuanaland.

DIVISION OF MAMMALS. A taxonomic study, at the generic level, of certain squirrels of southern Asia was completed by Curator Joseph Curtis Moore as part of his continuing interest in this group of mammals. He edited a symposium of eleven papers on marine mammals of the marine shelf of North America and wrote an introduction and a synopsis for it. Curator Moore also completed a study of the relationships of certain beaked whales of the Pacific. The publication of a 524-page study on the evolution of a large and hitherto confused group of South American rodents by Research Curator Hershkovitz marks an important step in documenting their treatment in the check-list of South American Mammals that he is preparing. For the same purpose he revised certain monkeys, and Dr. Fooden completed a revision of another group of monkeys. Douglas M. Lay, the William S. Street Fellow (Mammalogy), completed a short paper of new locality records of some Mexican mammals and of two species hitherto unrecorded for North America. Miss Betsy P. Thompson, Antioch College student, assisted Curator Moore in various aspects of his divisional work.

DIVISION OF BIRDS. Curator Emmet R. Blake's work on the birds of South America included the completion of a report on the birds of Sierra Macarena, Colombia, and another on the birds of southern Surinam, the latter based on the collection made there by Harry A. Beatty, in 1960-62. Associate Curator Traylor completed some taxonomic studies on the collection he made early in the year in Africa and completed and submitted for publication his check-list of Angola birds. He also completed a study of fall bird-migration in Egypt in co-operation with Research Associate Hoogstraal's studies on vectors of arthropod-borne diseases, continued studies of birds sent by Field Associate Fleming from Nepal, and began to prepare the section on African waxbills for Peters' Check-list of Birds of the World, a publication of Harvard University. Chief Curator Austin L. Rand's bird work was chiefly on a forthcoming handbook of New Guinea birds that is almost finished. He also did some critical studies on Philippine birds with Associate Rabor, who spent part of the summer at the Museum. Associate Ellen T. Smith's activities included measuring series of ducks and geese for inclusion in the next edition of Handbook of North American Birds, a volume sponsored by the American Ornithologists' Union.

DIVISON OF AMPHIBIANS AND REPTILES. Curator Inger's taxonomic research again centered around the material from Borneo, where he first collected in 1950, and from the Congo, where he collected in 1959. With Dr. Greenberg of Roosevelt University, he completed a study of the breeding cycle of a Borneo frog and began a more comprehensive study of such cycles and population densities of Borneo frogs. With Assistant Curator Hymen Marx, he completed a study of variation in certain primary sex organs (hemipenes) in snakes.

DIVISION OF FISHES. Curator Loren P. Woods and Associate Marion Grey continued the taxonomic studies on which they were working last year (see Annual Report, 1961, p. 57).

DIVISION OF INSECTS. Curator Rupert L. Wenzel completed the zoogeographical section of his monograph on histerid beetles, genus Margarinotus, and, in collaboration with Major Vernon J. Tipton of the United States Army, continued studies on the bat flies of Panama. Studies of ptiliid beetles by Associate Curator Dybas included examination of two fossil specimens of Miocene age from Mexico. Mr. Dybas also made preliminary studies in connection with future studies of periodical cicadas.

Research Associate Charles H. Seevers completed his work on the genera of rove beetles that live with ants. Associate Harry G. Nelson started a paper on the type specimens in the Karl Brancsik collection of Coleoptera acquired by the Museum some years ago. Associate Lillian A. Ross completed a manuscript on Central Amercan spiders of a genus of Micryphantidae. Research Associate Alex K. Wyatt continued to transfer his collection of North American Lepidoptera into standard museum cases. About half of his collection remains to be transferred.

DIVISION OF LOWER INVERTEBRATES. Curator Emeritus Fritz Haas completed the first 300 pages of his monograph of the freshwater unionid clams for the series Das Tierreich (Berlin). This project was started last year and will be published separately. He also prepared a report on the collection made by Dr. Frederick Medem in Colombia, and, with Dr. Robert Robertson of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, prepared a report on non-marine mollusks from British Honduras.

Curator Solem was away from the Museum most of the year on a field trip begun in 1961. During this time he made detailed studies on two genera of New Zealand land-snails and assembled material for a review of the Australian endodontid land-snail fauna. From May to September, he visited museums in twenty European cities in search of type specimens and completed diagnoses and descriptions of more than 500 species of endodontid snails, 140 of them new to science.

Assistant Ernest J. Roscoe continued his studies of non-marine mollusks of western North America until his transfer to Raymond Foundation in September.

DIVISION OF ANATOMY. Curator D. Dwight Davis completed his monograph on the anatomy of the giant panda, a project begun in 1938. Other research included a study of relative growth of parts of certain cats, a study of the anatomy of the heart in bears, and a philosophical study of the history of comparative anatomy. Associate Waldemar Meister completed his studies of the histological structure of the long bones in penguins. Research Associate R. M. Strong continued his studies of the anatomy of birds.

The scientific work of the Department of Zoology was aided by grants from the National Science Foundation (6), the National Institutes of Health (1), and the Office of the Surgeon General, United States Army (1).

Accessions-Zoology

The healthy growth of our collections is shown by the following figures: mammals, 2,638; birds, 4,645; amphibians and reptiles, 5,776; fishes, 4,700; insects, 91,804; lower invertebrates, 11,200 sets, with about 74,000 specimens; anatomy, 73 specimens.

These specimens came in 289 shipments, in large lots and small, from near and far, by gift, purchase, and expedition. Some came direct from the collectors, some were transfers of private collections, some were by exchange with other museums, and some came from the two local zoos. The diversity of these accessions is illustrated by the following entries: 1 frog from Celebes (exchange); 2 bear hearts (gift); 4 waterbugs from Madagascar, Australia, and Solomon Islands (gift); 29,492 beetles from Brazil (purchase); 1 fish from Ecuador (exchange); 279 mammals from Surinam (expedition); 427 amphibians and reptiles from Borneo (purchase); 1,493 birds from Africa (expedition); 1 whale skeleton from Puerto Rico (exchange); 50 lots of land mollusks from British Honduras (gift); 1,276 fishes from Tahiti (expedition).

An outstanding gift was a collection of 4,822 beetles, donated by Harrison R. Steeves, Jr., of Birmingham, Alabama. The meticulously prepared specimens are mostly from Alabama and represent more than 1,000 species, many of them new to the Museum's collections.

Care of the Collections-Zoology

Such items as these—"specimens were catalogued," "skulls were cleaned," "routine poisoning" or "fumigating," "put more alcohol in specimen jars to replace evaporation loss," "new collection was incorporated," "reorganized collection," "wrote new labels for cases," "specimens were selected for exchange," "returned loans were processed," "more space is needed," "additional help is required"—are commonplace in divisional reports. They reflect the continual pulsing rhythms that add to and maintain a big collection.

Of the other activities that go on continually may be mentioned: the current bibliographic work of Assistant M. Dianne Maurer on Angola birds, the many telephone inquiries answered by Assistant Pearl Sonoda, the illustrating done by Assistant Joan Davis Levin, the skeletons prepared by Osteologist Sophie Andris, and the large mammal-skins prepared by Tanner Mario Villa. Alan D. Havens, Antioch College student, helped with the routine in the Division of Insects.

CHIEF CURATOR RAND AND TAXIDERMIST COTTON REVIEW NEW INSECT EXHIBIT

Exhibits—Zoology

"The Insect World" is the title for a series of new insect exhibits, the first of which was installed and the second nearly finished. The first case shows seven primitive orders from springtails to stone-flies, each order with a panel to itself. Actual insects are shown, and if they are minute, enlarged diagrams are used to show their structure. Collateral material varies but includes such items as growth stages, photographs of habitats, and special features (for example, a Chinese cricket cage and a section of an arboreal nest of termites).

Ideally, when exhibits begin to disintegrate they should be modernized. But practical reasons often dictate that we remove only the evidence of the ravages of time. This exasperating task was carried on with the systematic fish exhibit (Hall O), where crumbling fins were restored. In addition, the renovation of the Texas coast fish habitat group (Hall O) and of the elephant seal group (Hall N) has been completed and renovation of the hoofed and horned mammals (Hall 13, George M. Pullman Hall) has been started.

This exhibition work was carried on by Taxidermist Carl W. Cotton, Assistant Taxidermist Peter Anderson, and Artist Joseph B. Krstolich. For the insect exhibit, under the direction of Associate Curator Dybas with Assistant August Ziemer preparing the specimens, art work was prepared by Staff Artist E. John Pfiffner and Staff Illustrator Marion Pahl. Antioch College students Adrian N. DeWind and Alan D. Havens also took an active part in helping to further the insect exhibition work.

The other routine of the taxidermists included helping to prepare skeletons of large animals received in the flesh from the zoos, preparation of mounted birds for the use of Raymond Foundation, and training of a missionary-student, Peter Hocking, in preparing specimens. One of the important intermuseum activities is the demonstration of methods of exhibition and preparation to personnel from other museums. During the year, this courtesy was extended to representatives of about twenty institutions.

LIBRARY OF THE MUSEUM

The Library's holdings during the year increased by 9,784 items, through gifts, exchange, purchase and transfer of additional serials in the natural sciences from The John Crerar Library. These items include books, periodicals, pamphlets, photostats, maps, microfilms, and other library materials. The advancement in scientific progress and the phenomenal increase in research activities in formerly undeveloped areas of the world has increased in no less proportions the amount of scientific information that is published. emphasized the problems of selection, acquisition and storage. The Library is concerned with the responsibility of providing the members of the scientific staff with the literature they require, but it is not possible to maintain a complete comprehensive library for information in each of the Museum's fields of scientific endeavor. This is prohibitive financially as well as from the standpoint of space; therefore, it has been expedient to choose what is most important and avoid as much duplication as possible. Decisions in selectivity take time, and this process has been a consistent cooperative effort on the part of the scientific and library staffs. During the year, 1,825 books were accessioned and 9,092 journals were recorded on the Kardex.

Of comparable importance is the program that is required to identify and dispose of portions of the book collections that no longer prove useful to the Library. The program of discarding obsolete, ephemeral and duplicate materials continued with the withdrawal of 375 items. Proceeds from the sale of some of this material amounted to $1,903.75.

Gifts to the Library are screened carefully because the Library cannot afford to catalog and house them unless they fit into its acquisition program. This opportunity is taken to thank each donor for his generosity and thoughtfulness in contributing to the Library's resources (see list on page 103).

There is an obvious need for physical enlargement of the Library facilities. The current rate of growth has been far in excess of what was anticipated ten years ago. A survey of the situation was made to find a means to rectify the present dilemma and to establish a flexible plan to cope with the future. The survey was projected over the next twenty years. Included in the proposed requirements, insofar as they can be foreseen, is the extent of the Library's program in its relationship to the research program in the scientific divisions; studies of additional space needs; and improvement by means of physical access.

The Reference Division was reorganized in June. Since the Library does not have the manpower to render more than limited reference service, yet definitely recognizes its responsibilities for such work, a re-assignment of staff duties was made in the Reference and Catalog Divisions in order to speed up and improve service to visitors. Activities in the Reading Room during the past year and especially during the last six months indicate a continuing increase in the use of the collections by visitors, and the significance of the Library as a research center has become more and more evident. Reference librarians must keep up to date on new acquisitions and as the cataloging division receives all incoming material almost immediately upon receipt, it was deemed advisable to turn over the supervision of the Reading Room to Mrs. Bertha Gibbs and Mr. W. Peyton Fawcett of the Cataloging Division. who now serve in the Reading Room during alternate monthly periods. It is important that the catalogers know the needs of the readers who seek the Library resources, and the alternate monthly period in the Reading Room enables them to keep in touch with the needs of the card catalog. This information enhances the contributions made to the card catalog by catalogers in their selection of subject heading material. These contributions provide an extremely effective key to the Library's resources. Thus, this arrangement serves a dual purpose.

Mere statistics do little to reveal the high quality of service given by the reference staff in personal assistance to visitors in pursuit of information; 678 visitors consulted the Library's resources during the year, and 2,583 volumes were circulated to readers. Reference questions often take the form of telephone inquiries and 340 such queries were handled by the Reference Staff.

The new arrangment in the Reading Room enabled Mrs. Eugenia Jang, who had had sole supervision of the Reading Room together with her many other duties, to devote her attention to the recording on the Kardex of incoming serials, to watch for gaps in receipts and write for missing issues, to oversee the distribution of serials to the departmental and divisional libraries, and to expedite the service of interlibrary loan. As has been customary, a good deal of material was lent to other organizations and institutions during the year and the Museum Library, in turn, borrowed books to supplement its resources. The number of items borrowed and lent amounted to 358.

A section of 71 trays was added to the general card catalog in the main library. The cards constituting the catalog in both the Author and Title and the Subjects sections have been redistributed in the total space now available. At the same time, numerous duplicate and inaccurate cards were removed from the "unrevised" portions of both sections, further relieving the congestion. The catalog now presents an improved appearance, and its use has been greatly facilitated by the creation of additional space.

The project for the creation of a Subject Headings Authorities File, begun in 1961, has been carried forward by the typing of cards for subjects under the letters H through N. The File is now completely revised through the letter F. During 1962 the cataloging division revised 2,588 subject headings and cross-references and added an additional 565. Miss Evelyn L. Smith, a very able Antioch student who worked in the Library from October through December, prepared subject headings and cross-reference cards for the letters H-N. During the year 4,891 cards were added to this file. These will be revised by the Cataloging Division to eliminate duplication and to provide additional cross-references.

The Authors Authorities File received 1,265 additional cards, including the complete names and pertinent data on authors, societies, museums, government bureaus of various countries, etc. This file is used by the catalogers to ensure accuracy, uniformity and consistency in catalog entries, and is amply cross-indexed to cover variant forms of names and designations. Duplicate cross-references are filed in the main catalog for both subjects and authors, to help users who wish to locate any desired entry.

Further progress in the reclassification of the older holdings of the Library, with special emphasis on serials, has been made.

During the year, 3,271 volumes, comprising 387 titles, were reclassified according to the Library of Congress scheme. Each item was also completely recataloged and new cards were prepared, containing accurately verified bibliographical data. The volumes were relabeled and cleaned, and many were repaired and rebound.

New acquisitions in the number of 1,163 have been processed, including 2,178 volumes. 766 cards describing the Library's holdings of new, rare, or unique works, and also including analytics for articles in serials not analyzed by the Library of Congress, were submitted to the National Union Catalog. Entries were also submitted to be included in New Serial Titles, issued monthly with annual cumulations by the Library of Congress. Altogether, 1,550 titles comprising 5,449 volumes were processed, and 1,351 analytics were made for monographs and selected subjects not included in published indexes. A total of 14,094 cards were filed in the general and departmental card catalogs.

In the East Asia Division of the Library the revision and typing of permanent main entry cards based on the original hand-written slips continued during the year; 296 main entries, including cards for separate works, serials and analytics, were typed and filed in the catalog of that division. Each of these cards contains bibliographical data in romanized Chinese and Chinese calligraphy, with English translation of the title and collation and notes in English.

The most rapidly growing section of the Library is the collection of periodicals, received on exchange and by purchase. The Library has continued to develop its system of exchanges, domestic and foreign, with academies, learned societies, universities and research institutions. During the year 27 additional formal exchange agreements were concluded, and some informal agreements were negotiated; 41 older exchanges were revised, others expanded, curtailed or cancelled.

In accordance with its usual practice as a service to Museum staff members, the Library translated 249 items into English.

This year 1,269 volumes, the greater portion comprising serial publications, were prepared for shipment to the bindery. The rapid deterioration of modern printing paper presents a grave problem, and improved methods of book repair were studied and applied, together with preservative measures, to 606 volumes; 4,812 volumes were labeled. The arduous task of alleviating crowding, not only in the general library but also in the departmental libraries, was undertaken by Mr. Stosius.

Under the student training program offered by Antioch College, the Library was again fortunate in having the temporary but very able services of Miss Sally Thomasson, Miss Margaret Harton, and Miss Evelyn L. Smith.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

During 1962 the efforts of the Division of Public Relations were concentrated on developing a balanced program of informing the public about the Museum's functions, from the acquisition and preservation of collections through research, education, and exhibition.

Information about five Museum zoological expeditions was featured in all metropolitan and many suburban newspapers. Well-illustrated articles on two important anthropological acquisitions and on the Pacific Research Laboratory emphasized the preservation of collections in the Department of Anthropology. Research being done in the Departments of Geology, Botany, and Zoology was featured in articles by science writers for the Chicago newspapers, and carried by the New York Times and the national press services.

Publicity for the Museum's educational program stressed the work of the Raymond Foundation and the adult lecture series. The inauguration of the Holiday Science Lectures for selected high school students received special attention with the arrangement of a press luncheon and the distribution of a press kit describing the origin and purposes of this distinguished program. Broadcasting and newspaper media responded with extensive coverage.

The Museum's exhibition program continued, for publicity purposes, to be divided into two categories: the monthly featured exhibits and the special exhibits. For the first group, especially fine newspaper publicity appeared on the newly installed Maori council house; the new permanent exhibit, "The Human Image in Primitive Art"; and the exhibit on diatoms in Chicago's water.

The schedule of special exhibitions was climaxed during the summer by the "Tutankhamun Treasures," followed in the fall by "The Art of Benin." The outstanding attendance record for the "Tutankhamun Treasures" was undergirded by the most comprehensive publicity campaign yet undertaken by the Division of Public Relations. In addition to excellent response by metropolitan newspapers, articles appeared in downstate and nearby state newspapers and in news media abroad. Many company publications carried information, and the Illinois Central Railroad and Chicago Transit Authority made advertising space available on their stations and vehicles. addition, circulars were distributed to selected mailing lists, posters were displayed in schools and universities, and an exhibit of appropriate books was arranged in the Chicago Public Library. Broadcast coverage included filming of the exhibition opening by all Chicago television stations and by Movietone Newsreel. Several important programs featuring the exhibition were subsequently arranged on local radio and television stations. Only a slightly less extensive campaign was carried out for "The Art of Benin," including notice in the "Life Guide" section of Life magazine, features in the Chicago Defender and Ebony magazine, and fine photographic reproductions of several Benin bronzes in Perspective magazine.

Appropriate publicity was also planned for six other special exhibits during the year. Of these, special mention should be made of the delightful pictures from the annual exhibit of the Junior School of the Art Institute, which were reproduced in all four Chicago newspapers.

Throughout 1962, the Bulletin continued to be used by many newspapers and magazines throughout the country as an important source of feature material.

The Museum wishes to express appreciation for the generous cooperation of many news media in our public relations program. In particular, thanks are due Chicago's American, the Chicago Daily News, the Chicago Sun-Times, and the Chicago Tribune; ABC, CBS, NBC, and WGN radio and television; educational television station WTTW, and radio station WFMT. We also thank the many suburban and neighborhood newspapers who consistently reported Museum activities, the Associated Press, United Press International, and Central Press Association, who were most helpful in carrying news beyond the Chicago metropolitan area.

CO-OPERATION WITH OTHER INSTITUTIONS

Dr. Paul S. Martin, Chief Curator of Anthropology, lectured at the University of Illinois and the University of Arizona. Dr. Martin. Dr. Donald Collier, Curator of South American Archaeology and Ethnology, Dr. Kenneth Starr, Curator of Asiatic Archaeology and Ethnology, and Mr. George I. Quimby also lectured at the Michilimackinac Historical Society in Michigan. He was appointed a Collaborator of the United States National Park Service, and served on the advisory board of the archaeological salvage project at Ocmulgee National Monument in Georgia. The Museum continued the course in museology given by the Department of Anthropology in co-operation with the University of Chicago Department of Anthropology. Fecadu Gadamu. from Ethiopia, held the Museum Fellowship of the University of Chicago during the first half of the year, and his work at the Museum continued into the fall.

Dr. Rainer Zangerl, Chief Curator of Geology, taught a course in histology for paleontologists to advanced students of paleozoology of the University of Chicago. The University course on vertebrate paleontology was offered this year at the Museum by Dr. Everett Olson, Research Associate. One of the lectures in this course was given by Dr. Robert Denison, Curator of Fossil Fishes, and another by Mr. William Turnbull, Assistant Curator of Fossil Mammals. Dr. Edward Olsen, Curator of Mineralogy, received an appointment as lecturer in the Department of Geophysical Sciences of the University of Chicago. Dr. Olsen also began a study of meteorites in co-operation with Dr. Robert Mueller, of that Department. Dr. Bertram G. Woodland, Associate Curator of Petrology, lectured to the Northwestern University Geology Club.

A course in Zoogeography, Phylogeny and Evolution was presented at the Museum for a University of Chicago class. The Museum staff lecturers were Dr. Austin Rand, Chief Curator of Zoology; Dr. Rupert L. Wenzel, Curator of Insects; Dr. Robert Inger, Curator of Reptiles and Amphibians; Mr. Henry Dybas, Associate Curator of Insects; Mr. Loren Woods, Curator of Fishes; Mr. Philip Hershkovitz, Research Curator of Mammals; Mr. D. He also lectured at the University of Illinois and the University of Chicago, and he supervised the studies of a graduate student from the University of Chicago. Dr. Inger conducted a seminar at the University of Southern California and lectured at the San Diego State College and the University of Chicago. Dr. Wenzel was appointed Lecturer in Zoology at the University of Chicago. Mr. Dybas presented a course in entomology at Northwestern University. Mr. Woods gave a series of three lectures at Harvard University and Dr. Alan Solem, Curator of Lower Invertebrates, lectured at the University of Hawaii and several other overseas institutions. Dr. Alfred E. Emerson, Research Associate, was honored by being elected to the National Academy of Sciences.

Under the co-operative plan adopted in 1946 by the Museum and Antioch College fourteen students were employed in 1962 by the Museum (their names are listed in appropriate places in this Report). The Museum lent Tibetan masks to the University of Indiana and Chinese jades to the University Museum in Philadelphia. The exhibit of "Tutankhamun's Treasures" was installed jointly by the Oriental Institute and the Museum. Assistance was given by Dr. Pinhas Gelougaz, Dr. Helene J. Kantor and Mr. Robert Hansen of the Institute. A part of the Museum's collection of Tibetan xylographs was microfilmed and described under the supervision of Mr. Chih-wei Pan, of the Museum library staff. This project was carried out jointly with the staff of the Inner Asian Project of the Far Eastern and Russian Institute of the University of Washington.

The facilities of the Museum were used by universities and colleges of the United States and Canada. Supervised classes from a number of art schools continued to use the Museum exhibits as part of their regular classroom work in sketching, painting and modeling. In May the results of the work from classes of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago were featured in a special exhibit in the Museum.

The Chicago Area Science Fair (sponsored by the Chicago Teachers' Science Association) and Chicago Latin Day (sponsored by the Illinois Classical Conference for Latin students of the Chicago area), in which about 1,500 students participated, were also held in the Museum in May.

Twelve Senior Girl Scouts from the Chicago Girl Scout Council were trained as Museum Aides to assist in Museum work, especially in Nature Proficiency Badge Girl Scout programs. A group of eight Senior Girl Scouts from the South Cook County Girl Scout Council was trained to usher at the Audubon illustrated lectures.

Scientists from all over the world visited the Museum to study the collections and use the laboratories and workrooms of the four scientific departments.

Meetings were held at the Museum during the year by various organizations working in fields related to the scope of the Museum, among them the Illinois Audubon Society, Illinois Orchid Society, Illinois Garden Guild, Kennicott Club, Nature Camera Club, Citizenship Council of the Board of Education, Adult Education Council, Chicago Police Academy, and Chicago Chamber Orchestra Association. The Free Concerts Foundation presented six concerts in the James Simpson Theatre.

MOTION PICTURES

During the year the photography, editing, and script preparation for the Museum's new film (yet to be titled) were completed. Prints will be made and sent to the many schools and organizations that have requested this new film after screening "Through These Doors," the current Museum film that was produced in 1950. During the year a new opening sequence with the Director of the Museum and other new scenes were filmed for "Through These Doors" to keep it up to date. This year the film was sent to 88 schools and organizations throughout the Chicago area, and requests from other parts of the country and from Canada for its loan also were filled.

General inspection, which includes the repair, cleaning, and replacement of damaged sections of films, was carried out on the usual twice-a-year plan for all film-subjects in the Film Library. Cataloguing and accessioning of all films, now numbering 111 complete productions on various natural-history subjects, were continued, as was checking of the thousands of feet of film in the footage library. Requests for loan of films by Raymond Foundation, Museum staff, and outside sources were filled.

PHOTOGRAPHY AND ILLUSTRATION

Work of the Division of Photography is integral to many aspects of the Museum program—scientific and popular publications, exhibition, research activities of the staff and others in the scientific community, and audio-visual aids. Thus, a notable variety of work is completed. During 1962, 35,116 prints and 2,428 new negatives were prepared.

Major projects included a large number of photographs of the Fuller and the Museum Benin collections, many of which appeared in the exhibition catalogue, The Art of Benin; and the completion of the first 35 color transparencies of the unique Stanley Field collection of plant models. The latter are the first units of a projected series of botanical teaching aids.

The exhibition program, scientific illustration, and design for public relations purposes placed a heavy burden on the Division of Illustration. Through close collaboration and sharing of responsibilities between the Staff Artist and the Staff Illustrator, balanced and effective accomplishment in all fields resulted during the year.

BOOK SHOP

In terms of concentrated usage of space, the Book Shop ranks high among the divisions of the Museum. More than 600 different books and 800 novelties are normally on sale in only 800 square feet of sales area. Sales during the year were $182,327, a slightly lower total than 1961 sales.

PUBLICATIONS AND PRINTING

Distribution of Museum publications totaled 94,635 copies, of which 75,601 were sold and 19,033 were distributed to other institutions and to individuals under exchange agreements.

Publications issued by the Museum in 1962 are listed on the following pages. Of these, copies printed by the Museum Press totaled 57,097, from 2,091 pages of type composition. Twelve issues of Chicago Natural History Museum Bulletin were printed, averaging 9,248 copies an issue.

Harold M. Grutzmacher, who was placed in charge of the Division of Printing upon the resignation of Raymond H. Hallstein, Sr., capably handled the increased responsibility.

CAFETERIA

Both the number of individuals served, 323,638, and the gross receipts of the cafeteria, $266,876, represented a considerable increase over the figures of 1961. The increase in Museum attendance was partially responsible, but considerably extended service and service hours in both the cafeteria and the lunchroom accounted for the greater portion of the increase. Food service is now available from 11:00 A.M. until 30 minutes before the Museum closing hour.

MAINTENANCE, CONSTRUCTION, AND ENGINEERING

Two major projects begun in 1961 were brought near to completion in 1962: the construction work in the Hall of Useful Plants (Hall 28) and in Hall 32, in conjunction with the re-installation of the Chinese collections. Major construction and electrical work was done in Hall 9 prior to the exhibition of the "Tutankhamun Treasures" and additional work was completed for the exhibition of the "Art of Benin" in the same hall later in the year. The sculptures of British champion domestic animals by Herbert Haseltine were removed from Hall 12, for later re-installation in Hall 19, and a new office was constructed for the President in the Hall 12 area.

In continuation of our effort to create additional and critically needed storage space, a number of ground floor stair wells were bricked in.

The entire skylight over Stanley Field Hall, approximately 20,000 square feet in area, was cleaned and caulked to eliminate leaks. Further, tuckpointing of the exterior of the building was completed. The north parking lot was re-surfaced by personnel of the Chicago Park District.

The summer cleaning and renovation of the boilers were completed. New or replacement equipment installed during the year included a water pump, a gas cooking range in the cafeteria, a projection screen for the Lecture Hall, and an additional 244 fluorescent fixtures in various exhibition and storage areas.

Steam generated included 67,541,650 pounds, of which 17,219,720 pounds were furnished to the Chicago Park District and 12,195,-120 pounds were furnished to the John G. Shedd Aquarium.

THE TRUSTEES,

CHICAGO NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM:

We have examined the accompanying comparative statement of receipts and expenditures—current funds of the Chicago Natural History Museum for the year ended December 31, 1962. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the statement mentioned above presents fairly the receipts and expenditures of the current funds of the Chicago Natural History Museum for the year ended December 31, 1962, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.
